Story of Col. Dahlgren's Body—A Midnight Adventure

CURIOUS UNIONISTS DISCOVER AND EXHUME THE REMAINS UNDER THE REBEL REGIME

The Richmond Republican gives an account of the finding of the body of Col. Dahlgren, who fell in that greatest of all the Union raids of the war. After the attack on Richmond on the 1st of March, Col. Dahlgren failed to make a junction with Kilpatrick and was killed on the night of the 2d. This event was so astounding to the people and the rebel army at Richmond, that every precaution was taken in the burial of the gallant Colonel, that the place thereof might never be known. The body was taken to the city on the 5th and that night it was carried to Gen. Elzey's office in Belvin's block, and the next day having been placed in a common pine coffin, was transferred to Oakwood Cemetery, a mile east of the city. The hearse used on this occasion was a four mule street wagon and the attendants consisted of a Confederate officer of inferior rank and two soldiers. Arriving at Oakwood, which was the burial place of all soldiers who died at Chimborazo, [illegible] and other hospitals in the eastern portion of the city and suburbs, the negro grave diggers were driven off and ordered to absent themselves until notified that they might return. One of the negroes, however, living in the city, having his curiosity excited, secreted himself in the woods near by, determined to see what was to be done. The two soldiers dug a grave, placed the box in it, and covered it up. They then shouted to recall the attendants of the cemetery and getting into the wagon returned to the city. The only circumstance in the proceedings that struck the negro as unusual was the mystery observed and the circumstance of the box, no corpse ever having been brought there before except in a pine coffin, but there having been a great deal of talk as to what was to be done with the body of Colonel Dahlgren, he at once decided that this could be no other than the corpse of that officer. He, however, kept his opinion to himself at the time. The question, what had been done with the body of Dahlgren? was the subject of inquiry and conversation for many days in Richmond, to be revived from time to time up to the day of evacuation. And there were many stories on the subject—that it had been burnt, sunk in the river, etc. A city paper of that day announced, with a solemn and knowing air, that it would never be found until the trump of doom should sound.

Mr. F. W. E. Lohmann, of that city, resolved to find the negro and obtain the secret. Having found him, the negro refused to tell, but on the payment of $100 and the promise that he would not be exposed he went with Mr. Lohman near to the cemetery, threw a stone on the grave so as not to excite the suspicion of the superintendent of the burying ground.

The hour of midnight was fixed for exhuming the body. The grave lay among thousands of those Confederate soldiers. Subsequently, after a great deal of persuasion and the promise of a liberal reward, the negro agreed to meet Mr. Lohman at the cemetery on the night of the 6th of April, at ten o'clock, and exhume the body. The appointed night having arrived, Mr. Lohman, his brother, John A. Lohman, and Mr. Lipscomb, started for the cemetery, in a cart drawn by a mule. The night was dark and stormy, and well suited to conceal their movements. The party left the city at 9 o'clock, and reached their destination about 10, and there found waiting for them, the grave digger and two assistants. The negroes being assured that all was right, began their work of exhumation, the three white men remaining with their cart outside the inclosure of the cemetery. The heavens were hung with their deepest black; no object ten feet distant could be distinguished, and no sound broken upon the loneliness of the place save the howling of the winds and the chopping of the resurrectionist's spade. Once the mule, snuffing the tainted air of the city of the dead, attempted to break away, but was quickly quieted by a firm hand.

In twenty minutes from the time the negroes began their work, they approached the cart, bearing between them the coffin which, being badly made, fell to pieces as they rested it upon the ground. It was then discovered that the body had not decomposed in any perceptible degree. Mr. Lohman satisfied himself of the identity of the corpse by passing his hand over it. The little finger torn off to secure the jewel it bore, and the leg lost in battle, were missing. He paid the negro with whom he had contracted, $1,500, and placing the body in the cart, the party started on their return. The body was wrapped in a blanket, and Mr. Lohman came to the city in search of a coffin, which he obtained by the aid of Mr. Lipscomb. On his way into the city from Rowlett's, Lohman notified a number of persons, of Union sentiments, among whom were several ladies, where the body had been placed, and they hurried out to see it. Several of these persons had seen Colonel Dahlgren while he was exposed at the York River Railroad depot, and immediately recognized the body as his. The metallic coffin having been procured, and the body placed in it, the two Lohmans, at noon, on the 7th, set out with it concealed in a wagon loaded with young fruit trees, for the farm of Robert Orricks, a Union man living in Henrico, two miles from Hungary station. At four o'clock that evening they reached Orricks', and buried the body under an apple tree in a field, avoiding the graveyard for fear of exciting inquiry, which might lead to discovery.

The body lay in its second resting place until the fall of Richmond, when the Lohmans again exhumed and transported it to Washington.

DATES TO OCTOBER 4.

European News.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The America, from Southampton, Sept. 20th, has arrived. The news is four days later. The cattle plague is increasing; the London cow houses have been decimated.

The Liverpool Albion says Benjamin, Confederate Secretary of State, intends to join the English bar. Accounts from the Manufacturing district in France are favorable.

The Prussian Government issued a proclamation announcing the assumption by the King of Prussia of the title of the Duke of Lauenberg, and the annexation of Lauenberg to Prussia. The king promises to carry on the government of the Duchies in conformity with the existing laws.

Russell's letters to his agents abroad censures the German Powers, and says force alone is the power which has been consulted—recognized France's organized force and conquest are only bases upon which Austria and Prussia have established their condition. This England deeply deplores. Her disinterestedness has been manifested for public right and the legitimate claim of a people to be heard when the question affects their destiny.

Prussia officially declares she will maintain a non-intervention policy in the Schleswig Holstein matter.

From St. Domingo.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—San Domingo news to the 9th of September has been received. The Dominicans celebrated the second anniversary of their restoration to independence by many rejoicings. Business is reviving notwithstanding the ominous rumor that the Spaniards intended to recapture Semana, the Gibraltar of the West Indies. The officers of the little Republic are looking up.

A FEMALE BLONDIN.—A well formed voluptuous looking little French Canadian woman, with a handsome face, calling herself M'lle Josephine De Vautier, is creating quite a sensation at Elm Park, Staten Island, by her daring feats, particularly that of ascending into the air a distance of eighty feet, and there performing upon a tight rope. On Saturday afternoon she made her first ascension, and performed a feat upon bottles—a pyramid of champagne bottles having been formed—which she ascended, and while standing on a single bottle at the top, balanced a number of rotating plates supported on her hands and chin. Shortly after, she reappeared and ascended a rope stretched a distance of one hundred and fifty feet and about eighty feet high. While upon the rope, M'lle De Vautier showed herself an expert in the profession. She knelt down, balanced on one foot, extended herself full length, recovering her upright position with apparent ease.

THE HORRORS OF ANDERSONVILLE.—Miss Clara Barton, a patriotic young lady who went with a party to Andersonville, Ga., to select a site for a national cemetery, writes: Two hundred and seventy-six soldiers, who were murdered for stepping beyond the dead-line in search of food and water, were disinterred in one day. And this was the work of chivalry. But it is something still more revolting to see a communication in the New York News from a man who professes to have been a prisoner at Andersonville, who pronounces the commander of the Andersonville prison a gentleman, and says that those prisoners who were shot had nobody but themselves to blame. And the News endorses the statement. No wonder it is so great a favorite with the great bulk of the resuscitated cotton States Journals.—Ex.

WADE HAMPTON APPLIES FOR PARDON.—The ex-General, Wade Hampton, has reconsidered his sanguinary determination to die in the last ditch of the Southern Confederacy, and now bellows lustily for pardon. Who next? Such applications for pardon, as recommended themselves to the Attorney-General, are again allowed to be forwarded to the White House. Among them the President occasionally finds an individual entitled to immediate pardon. All others have to wait.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

FRIDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 6, 18[illegible]

The Blackfoot Mines

So many laboring [illegible] a [illegible] afloat regarding new and [illegible] "diggins" and so often have the [illegible] been humbugged and [illegible] that most people now refuse [illegible] estimates until furnished with the most positive and undeniable proof. Following close upon the heels of the great Kootenai excitement, which was the greatest sell of the season, we had the reports of rich strikes in the Blackfoot country and it was but natural that all such statements from this quarter should be received with caution. But the reports of rich discoveries there have followed each other in such rapid succession—in many instances being accompanied by the strong proof of their truthfulness—that the most incredulous have no longer a peg left to hang a doubt upon. It has now become a settled fact that these mines are not only very extensive, but that they bid fair to rival those of California in her palmiest days. Full fifteen thousand people are said to have already arrived there, while the tide of immigration from all parts of the country is still rapidly pouring in. From all these circumstances it is but natural that we should entertain the most sanguine anticipations with regard to the future prospects of a vast region hitherto almost unknown to civilized man and endeavor to penetrate the future by estimating its probable influences upon our own locality. For a few seasons at least, the population of the Blackfoot country must draw their supplies almost entire from outside sources and the people of Oregon and Washington Territory have only to display the proper energy to secure their trade, which must become more and more important as the country becomes developed. With the probability of her people eventually being able to raise their own vegetable productions, their wants in respect to groceries and many other necessaries of life will remain to be supplied from other sources for all time to come. That there will be other competitors for this immense trade there is little reason to doubt, yet we regard the Columbia as the most natural channel through which it would pass, and hence, look forward to no distant day when Portland shall become the entrepot for supplying little less than half a million of people east of the mountains with the necessaries of life. It is true that it will require energy and enterprise to open up such a practicable line of communication and travel, but we have full confidence that all this will be effected in due time.

Immigrant Aid Society

It having been previously announced that Hon. A. L. Mercer was to sail from New York on the 19th of August in company with a party of three hundred young ladies—the orphan daughters of soldiers who have sacrificed their lives in defense of their country—who come to our shores in search of employment and homes, the citizens of Seattle, Washington Territory, where the immigrants are expected to soon arrive, held a meeting on the 15th ult. to devise means for their disposition and assistance. A brass band was in attendance and discoursed several patriotic airs, after which numerous persons present offered their suggestions as to the best method of procedure. After listening to the various plans presented, an Immigration Aid Society was formed and a President, Secretary and other necessary officers chosen. Committees were then appointed for all the various towns and localities throughout the Territory, to immediately canvass their districts for the purpose of ascertaining for what number of immigrants each district will be able to provide homes, and were instructed to report as soon as possible to the Recording Secretary, in order that the distribution of the party to the various assignments may be conducted with dispatch. A large number of homes have already been provided throughout the Territory, for the poor unfortunates who are traveling so far in search of them, and it is likely that others will yet be obtained; yet it is evident that many of the young ladies will be compelled to seek employment elsewhere.

Officers of the State Agricultural Society.—The election of officers of the Oregon State Agricultural Society came off on the second day of the Fair, resulting as follows: John Donthitt, of Lane county, President; J. C. Peebles, of Marion, Corresponding Secretary; and John Barrows, of Linn, Recording Secretary.

Greeley on Seward.—In a late number the New York Tribune says:

Whatever isolated facts or transitory appearances may seem to indicate, two things are certainly true of Governor Seward: he is anti-slavery to the core; and he is intensely, passionately devoted to the Union. Doubtless, there have been moments with him as with others, when these two impulses drew in different directions—when he felt obliged to soften or veil the manifestations of his love for universal freedom in deference to his Unionism, or to brave the imputation of undervaluing the Union in deference to his devotion to human liberty. Doubtless, moreover, he has sometimes erred in judgment (as who has not?), and especially in clinging in '61 to the hope of a peaceful adjustment of our differences long after all rational grounds of hope have vanished. We have differed in the past, we shall doubtless differ in the future; but we do not the less cheerfully testify that these differences have sprung from no lack of devotion on his part to American nationality or to universal freedom.

Another Chair from Seth Kinman.—We find the following in the Danville (Pa.) American of August 17th:

Kinman has now constructed a chair to be presented to President Johnson—a chair that surpasses all his previous efforts. It is made of two grizzly bears captured by himself. But we almost despair of giving anything like an accurate description of the article. Suffice it to say that the four legs, with the feet and claws in perfection, are those of a huge grizzly bear, while the arms are the arms and paws of another grizzly; the backs and sides are also ornamented with immense claws. The seat is soft and exceedingly comfortable, but the great feature of the "institution" is, that by touching a cord, the head of a monster grizzly bear, with extended jaws, will dart in front from under the seat, snapping and gnashing its teeth as natural as life.

The Northern Mail.—The California Stage Company, at the special request of Postal Agent Haskell, members of Congress and all parties interested, have consented to take the mail to and from Sacramento and Yreka, while awaiting an answer to strong dispatches that have been sent the Post Office Department, asking it to suspend its arbitrary ruling and give us a mail while the stock is yet on the road.—Sacramento [illegible]

The Iowa Democrats.—The Democratic party of Iowa has dropped the time worn appellation and adopted that of "Union." The State Convention adopted resolutions [illegible] Government [illegible] and against negro suffrage, which [illegible] cardinal principles of the opposition. [illegible] Benton, Jr. (Republican) as their candidate for Governor. Indeed their State ticket is composed principally, we are informed, from the same [illegible]

FIFTH ANNUAL STATE FAIR

[illegible]

Second Day [illegible]

The First Day's Proceedings.

At [illegible] the people of the State of Oregon assembled at the Capital for the purpose of attending the Annual Fair of the Agricultural Society. [illegible] apparently alive to the importance [illegible] in respect to the preparations for the exhibition [illegible] Stock, etc. to [illegible] premiums, and by [illegible] the ground [illegible] well and duly [illegible] for the [illegible] of the day. The books of the Secretary's office were opened [illegible] The business of the Society [illegible] to gentlemen [illegible] whom the community can place implicit confidence and the exertion they are putting forth [illegible] Mr. Wm. [illegible] satisfy the public and [illegible] for the exhibition [illegible] will be here prepared for business [illegible] will be entered for competition [illegible] the [illegible] classes [illegible] I have the greatest confidence that Oregon can safely [illegible] the world. The long row of stables in the grounds filled with the [illegible] animals, horses for all uses from the [illegible] racer to the solid draught horse [illegible] and it would not be very surprising if the Fair partook much of the nature of a Horse Show, on account of the great number likely to compete for premiums. At least sixty horses will be entered. Not alone in this respect, however, does this Fair offer the State chances for honors in successful competition with other States at least of this country. The articles, products and the stock, so far, is of the best order and enough has been presented to give the Fair a handsome start.

In the matter of home products the list is very large, embracing some of the finest articles. The ladies have taken great pains to [illegible] the Fair specimens of handiwork and home [illegible] embroidery, crotchet, needlework, preserved fruit, jellies, wines, etc., which is quite elegant. One hundred and sixty six entries were made in this class before [illegible] o'clock [illegible] day. Prominent among them I notice Mrs. [illegible] of Marion county, with twenty seven varieties of preserves and dried or canned fruits. Mrs. M[illegible] Miss Emma Eckart, Miss Minnie Winch[illegible] of Portland, Miss Farling and Miss Plamondon of Milwaukie, Miss Holmes of Oregon City, and others with specimens of water colored paintings, pencil drawings, leather or needle work. Portland, Milwaukie and Salem appear to be the producers of much more than one-half the articles yet on exhibition in this class. Mr. [illegible] of the [illegible] Store, Portland; Mr. Seibert of the Book Binders; Mr. [illegible] Jeweler; Mr. Walling of the [illegible] Office; Mr. Jos. Buchtel of the Photographic art, all make handsome displays in their respective branches of business. Mr. Seibert's exhibition of [illegible] etc., will attract great attention. The Pavilion is not yet filled.

Of agricultural implements there is not as yet a very great display. Messrs. Robinson [illegible] exhibit the only [illegible] mower ever brought to the State. Messrs. Knapp, Burrell & Co. have on exhibition a variety of plows, and Mr. Phillips of Corvallis, has one in competition. A Pitts thresher, which is a second hand machine, a cider press and a horse rake, constitute the list so far of implements.

Mr. Wm. Abernethy of Portland has entered for a premium the Grover & Baker Sewing Machine, and Messrs. Stewart & Gourley compete with him by offering the Wilcox & Gibbs Machine.

There is very little opportunity for comment upon the Fair and but little of interest to report at this time incident to the opening. The day has been wholly occupied in receiving and arranging goods, etc., for the exhibition, but when the books are closed there will be a field for reporters.

The weather continues very pleasant, and if once, if never again, it appears likely that the managers hit a good streak. It has been suggested that a season when full moonlight can be enjoyed, if for no other purpose than to facilitate getting about in night time, is the best in Oregon for the State Fair.

Sound Doctrine.—The National Intelligencer, always conservative, and during the last Presidential canvass a supporter of McClellan, gets off sound doctrine in respect to the eligibility of rebels to office. Speaking of the late election in Richmond, that venerable paper says:

But the Southern people must be admonished that they have no friends in the North who will tolerate willingly the return to national place of that pestiferous class of politicians who have abused and nearly ruined the South by fomenting all the causes which led to the late dreadful and calamitous war. These proscribed and dangerous disturbers of the peace are public enemies and should be so regarded. While, on the other hand, we protest that no oligarchy should rule the South, that no satrapy should be imposed upon them, that no unconstitutional intermeddling with their local matters should be allowed, and that the military power as far as may be safe shall be held therein subservient to the civil power; nevertheless, we affirm that it is the right and the duty of the Government to aid in the re-establishment of loyalty in the South by putting out of the way all men and things that are well known to be [illegible] not only to rebellion, to the progress of a Union [illegible]

Survey of the Route of the Oregon Central Military Railroad.—The President of the Oregon Central Military Railroad Company has forwarded from Eugene City, Oregon, to the General Land Office at Washington a survey of that route, extending from the above city in a south easterly direction for some thirty-six miles, which distance is already in successful operation. The line of the road takes the general direction of the Middle Fork of the Willamette river and pursues its route to the eastern boundary of the State, whence it may follow the line of the proposed emigrant route. By Act of Congress approved July 2, 1864, alternate sections of public lands designated by odd numbers and three sections in depth lying on each side of the route for the distance above described, were granted the State of Oregon to aid in the construction of the road.—*N. Gen. Connor's Indian Expedition.

FORT LARAMIE, Oct. 2.—General Connor returned on Saturday from the Powder river Indian expedition. His columns will be here in six days. The result of the campaign is four pitched battles with the Cheyennes, Sioux and Arrapahoes. The loss on our side is Captain [illegible] of the 6th Michigan and twenty-four men killed and wounded. The Indian loss was 400 to 500 killed and a large number wounded. The village of the Arrapahoes were entirely destroyed. We captured 600 head of horses and mules. The Arrapahoes acknowledge the loss of sixty-eight of their braves in [illegible] battle and are now coming in to make peace. It is thought, however, that the Sioux and Cheyennes are not half whipped, and that not less than one thousand five hundred men should be stationed at Fort Connor, and are now fearful that the Sioux and Cheyennes will come back on the road and interfere with the mails and telegraph. The expedition has been carried on under the most embarrassing circumstances. Not a pound of stores intended for the expedition arrived in time for the use of the troops. The men are mutinous, claiming their discharge because the rebellion has ceased, and regiments here ordered to be mustered out almost as rapidly as they arrive on the plains.

The South Carolina Constitution Adopted.

NEW YORK, October 2.—We have advices from Charleston to the 29th September. The South Carolina Convention passed the Constitution, with some slight amendments on the 26th. On the following day the Convention adjourned. By the constitution the right of voting is given to every white man of full age, who has been two years a citizen of the State and who is not a pauper, nor now a commissioned officer or private soldier in the army, nor a seaman nor a marine of the navy of the United States. An amendment was introduced to confer the right to vote upon European immigrants who deferred becoming citizens two years previous to the day of election and have resided six months in an election district. The election of Governor and Lieutenant Governor will be held in conjunction with the general assembly on the third Wednesday of the present month. A paper was signed by all the members of the Convention to induce Colonel J. L. Orr to announce himself as a candidate.

The Paraguayan War.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Further details respecting the war in South America have been received. The Paraguayans were actively pushing forward while the allied forces remained motionless, but concentrated at Concordia awaiting an attack. The Brazilian fleet on the Parana river had commenced a retrograde movement fearing that the Paraguayans would construct batteries below and so gain command of the river. The magnitude which this struggle is assuming may be estimated from the fact that at the date of our latest advices there were one hundred and thirteen thousand men under arms, of whom 56,000 were Paraguayans and 57,000 allies. Three American vessels were injured during the late gale off Montevideo. The bark Faith Rose lost its crew.

Military Operations in Texas.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—A private letter from a prominent official at Houston, Texas, says of military operations in that quarter: The army is changed into an immense Sheriff's posse chasing Jayhawkers. In fact all our duties are the most inglorious, only troops enough being left to take care of the negroes. Everybody is getting anxious for war in Mexico or elsewhere.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The London News of Sept. 1[illegible] has the following: An arrangement is understood to have been entered into by J. S. Morgan, Cooster Bros. and J. T. Mackenzie to offer for subscription during the present week, the issue of £500,000 debenture bonds of the Erie New York railway company; the terms are said to be such as to yield a high rate of interest. Debentures to run for 10 years and carry during the whole of that time, at the option of conversion at par into stock of the company, dividends on which have lately been at the rate of 8 per cent.

Treaty with the Osages.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 2.—A special dispatch from Lawrence, Kansas, to the Democrat says Col. Sims, Superintendent of the Southern Indians, made an important treaty with the Osage Indians at their council grounds, one hundred miles South. The Osages cede about a million acres for which the Government will pay three hundred thousand dollars. About two million acres are also ceded from the north side of their Reservation to be sold in trust for the Indians. All of these lands are in Kansas. The rights of settlers and heads of families on these lands are protected by treaty.

Jeff. Davis Removed to a New Prison.

FT. MONROE, Oct. 2.—Jeff. Davis was moved to-day under a strong guard from his casemate prison to quarters assigned him in Carroll Hall.

Georgia Convention.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The Moravia and Ilaba bring Savannah dates to the 27th.

A dispatch to the Savannah Herald says: The Georgia State Convention has unanimously adopted an ordinance declaring the act of secession null and void.

Veteran Reserve Corps Disbanded—Ketchum the Forger.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The Post's Washington special says it is understood that orders will be issued in a few days to disband the Veteran Reserve Corps. The regular army is now sufficiently recruited to take the place of this corps.

The case of Ketchum was the most of [illegible] general sessions to-day but was postponed until next Monday. On motion of the District Attorney a [illegible] of a thousand [illegible] was ordered. Notice was given that further postponement would be [illegible] by him.

The office of Provost Marshal of Fairfax county, Va., opposite Washington, has been abolished for the first time since the commencement of the rebellion [illegible] by the rebels.

RICHMOND, Oct. 2.—Gen. Terry by a general order has designated nine members of the City Council and nine Aldermen, being a majority of the body elected in July, who shall be permitted to qualify and organize for the sole purpose of electing officers to conduct the congressional election which takes place Oct. 12. Christian and Douglass in the first district, and Epes in the 4th district have withdrawn from the contest for Congress.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Advices from San Domingo to the 5th of Sept. have been received. The death penalty for political offences has been abolished. The U. S. steamer Meredith had arrived and saluted the Dominican flag. Her commander visited the head of the government. Families who left the Island during the war are returning, and business is reviving.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. [illegible]—Alfred Allen alias Bonos, a noted burglar who had been captured in Napa County and was on his way to Santa Cruz to stand his trial for burglaries committed in that county, jumped from the San Jose cars near Mountain View station yesterday while they were under full headway and miraculously escaped injury and made his way to the chapparal and beyond the reach of his pursuers. Several parties were on his track last evening. He had handcuffs on at the time. In the county court of San Mateo County, Monday last Dr. Johnson the burglar who stole a safe from Skidmore's Station pleaded guilty as did also Hall the horse thief. Johnson was yesterday sentenced to three years and Hall to one year in States prison. Ross and Lyons the partners of Johnson in the burglary pleaded not guilty. Ross was yesterday convicted however and Lyons has his trial to-morrow.

Horrors of the Andersonville Prison Pen

The trial of the Andersonville jailor before the military court at Washington is proceeding slowly. Upwards of 150 witnesses have been summoned for the prosecution and so far only six have been examined. At this rate of progress the trial will consume several months. On August 24th, Dr. John C. Bates, the rebel physician of the prison, who testified on the day previous, was recalled to the stand. Speaking of the Andersonville prison, he said the scurvy there was next to rottenness; some of the patients could not eat because there was no mastication, their teeth were loose; they frequently asked him to give them something to eat which would not cause pain; while Dr. Stevens was Medical Director he did not manifest much interest in the relief of the necessitous; the rations were less than twenty ounces in twenty four hours, he did not know but what a man would starve to death on it, especially if the food was of a few articles and monotonous; sometimes the meat was good and sometimes bad on account of the paucity and unwholesomeness of rations, some of the men starved to death; the amputations and re-amputations, owing to gangrenous wounds, were numerous; there was plenty of wood in the neighborhood which might be cut to answer all demands; there was, on one occasion, an altercation between Dr. James and Capt. Wirtz; on going into the hospital, Dr. James learned that his chief clerk had been arrested and ordered to undergo the buck and gag; the clerk was bucked and set outside the gate; on inquiry Dr. James found that the clerk had neglected to report a man who was missing; Dr. James wrote a letter speaking of Wirtz's tyranny, and the clerk still continued to be punished.

A sketch in pencil, drawn by the inmates of the prison, was exhibited to witness, who said: There is Dr. Bates, No. 1, examining the quality of the beef; here is Dr. Bates, No. 2, giving meat and bones to the cripples; it was his prerogative, as officer of the day, to supervise the cooking; when rations were to be issued, he would frequently go to the place; sometimes twenty or a hundred surround him, imploring for bones; he was represented as distributing bones; that was of frequent occurrence; the sketch was accurate as far as it went, but it was not filled in; there ought to be twenty or forty figures in the space where only one appeared; men, as sketched, hobbled along on crutches, others crawled on the ground with tin cups in their mouths, because they could carry those articles in no other way; they wanted to mash up the bones to secure their contents for food. * * * Requisitions were made upon Dr. Clayton for hospital supplies and not on Captain Wirtz; never heard any blame attached to the prisoner about the badness of rations, nor his name mentioned in that connection; Captain Wirtz had always treated the witness kindly and he never saw him use any harsh means on anybody; the Confederate soldiers had several wells on the outside of the prison; the witness did not think they were supplied with water from the same source the Union prisoners were, the latter drawing their supplies from the stream running through the prison; he judged the stream of itself was not unhealthy, but the lower part of it might have been from the drainage of the camp; Andersonville was merely a railroad station until the war commenced, when military shanties were put up. * * * *

The witness was asked whether he knew of any persons, who, by their conduct, conspired to murder or otherwise cause the death of Union prisoners? He replied he had never been so impressed; he had always objected to the insufficiency and character of the rations; the shortness of the allowance was owing to its having been furnished by the Southern Confederacy; further supplies could not be furnished except by going to the country, and none of the officers had the right to go foraging; the surgeons always did the best they could, and frequently complained to the Surgeon-General about the insufficiency of means furnished. Supplies were received from the North from the Sanitary Commission, and he saw some of the prisoners wearing the clothes which had been furnished.

The Judge Advocate offered in evidence a morning report of J. Crews Pilot, Assistant Surgeon at Andersonville, to his superior, Surgeon Ellard, made September 5, 1864, and reading as follows:

Sir:—As officer of the day for the past twenty four hours, I have inspected the hospital, and find it in as good condition as the nature of the case will allow. A majority of the bunks are still unsupplied with bedding, while in a portion of the division the tents are entirely destitute of either bunks, bedding or straw, the patients being compelled to lie upon the bare ground. I would earnestly call your attention to the article of diet; the corn-bread from the bakery being made up without sifting, is wholly unfit for the use of the sick, and often in the last twenty-four hours upon examination, the inner portion is found to be perfectly raw. The meat, (beef) received by the patients, does not amount to over two ounces per day; and for the past three or four days no flour has been issued. The corn-bread cannot be eaten by many, for to do so would be to increase the disease of the bowels, from which a large majority are suffering and it is therefore thrown away. All their rations received by way of sustenance are two ounces of boiled beef and a half a pint of rice soup per day. Under these circumstances, all the skill that can be brought to bear upon their cases by the medical officer will avail nothing. Another point to which I feel it my duty to call your attention is the deficiency of medicines. We have nothing more than the indigenous barks and roots with which to treat the numerous forms of disease to which our attention is daily called. For the treatment of wounds, ulcers, etc., we have literally nothing except water. Our wards, some of them are wild with gangrene; and we are compelled to fold our arms and look quietly upon the ravings, not even having the stimulants to support the system under its depressing influence, the article being so limited in supply that it can only be issued for cases under the knife. I would respectfully call your attention to the above facts in the hope that something may be done to alleviate the suffering of the sick.

Dr. A. W. Barrows, being sworn, testified as follows: he had served as a physician to the 27th Massachusetts, was taken prisoner at Plymouth, and finally found his way to Andersonville, where he was paroled by Capt. Wirtz and placed in charge of two wards of the hospital; he remained there six months, till the 9th of October, when he made his escape, since which time he had practiced medicine at home; when he went to Andersonville there were 600 or 700 patients lying on the ground; they were partially naked; some had broken limbs and gangrene, scurvy and chronic diarrhea; nine-tenths of the patients were lying on the ground, while the others had insufficient shelter; Capt. Wirtz would say when any prisoner escaped or attempted to escape that he would starve every damned Yankee for such attempt; the prisoner was punished either in the stocks or in the chain gangs; the stocks consisted of a frame work six feet high, with boards shut together, with room for a man's neck; men thus fastened could stand on their feet, where others merely touched the ground with their toes, and the chain gang was sometimes composed of six men, and sometimes eighteen; they were handcuffed, and chains passed around their necks and legs, and to these chains a 32 pound ball was fastened; the gang would be held together one or two weeks, the men meantime being exposed to the sun and rain, which had the effect of weakening and reducing them; he had no doubt of the fact that some died in consequence; another kind of punishment was putting the feet in stocks, the feet being elevated and the other part of the body lying on the ground. The witness never got from Dr. White what he asked for, there always being some evasive answers; anti-scorbutics were much needed, but not supplied; he proposed, but the authorities refused to allow him to take men and cut timber, which could have been procured ten rods distant; hounds were kept near the hospital to get the trail of escaping prisoners who, when caught, were brought back and put in the stocks. The witness knew of a case where a man under such circumstances was mangled in the face by one of the dogs, but recovered; another case came under his observation, it was in August or September of 1864, when a Union prisoner was wounded by one of the hounds, he died not only from the bite, but directly from gangrene; he had seen Capt. Wirtz on horseback with the hounds, but Turner seemed to have direct charge of the dogs; he had heard Wirtz order Sergeant Smith to start the hounds, as somebody had got away; very large sores had resulted from vaccination; the matter used was poisonous, and [illegible] and amputation resulted; the rations when he went there were small—two ounces of bacon, a small potato, corn bread (4 inches square), no coffee, tea, sugar, nor flour; sometimes there was a little rice soup—a gallon of rice to 30 gallons of water; in July they got a few vegetables—not a spoonful a day; the morals of the prisoners were corrupted by cruel treatment; men would steal from each other for something to eat, and would work among the filth even for potato parings or anything else; a Union man in his ward was shot within the hospital by a Confederate soldier and wounded in the thigh; the limb was amputated and the man died the next day. When a raid was expected from Gen. Kilpatrick the witness heard Capt. Wirtz give an order to fire upon the prisoners if they huddled together; there were from 32,000 to 36,000 prisoners there at the time, and in the month of August, as appeared from the official report, nearly 3,000 died. On the removing of the prisoners from Andersonville one of them fell back, when the witness saw Capt. Wirtz knock the man down and stamp upon him; this was in September 1864; Wirtz had a revolver in his hand, but the witness did not know that Wirtz used it to knock the prisoner down.

On Saturday, August 26th, the examination of Dr. Barrows was continued, and the testimony of another important witness, Robert M. Kellogg, who was also a prisoner at Andersonville, was taken. These evidence corroborated in full all that has before been spoken and written of the horrors and sufferings of that dreadful prison pen. The captives were starved and tortured to death, and the dead bodies were sometimes left lying where they had breathed their last for three days, poisoning the atmosphere and rendering it almost unendurable; the living 200 men died in one day in August, 1864. The rations supplied, rotten as in many cases they were, were not sufficient in quantity to long sustain life. The men were compelled to lie in dirt, filth, raggedness, and almost nakedness, on the bare ground, in the freezing cold and scorching heat, and in the morning, when a party was huddled together, the dead were frequently found mingled with the living. Those who were not killed by this course of treatment were reduced to skeletons, while many were eaten up with gangrene, and others lost limbs. On one occasion, out of a squad of 90 men, in which Mr. Kellogg belonged, were unable to stand when ordered to form in line, owing to weakness from scurvy and diarrhea. Nearly 300 out of 400 who accompanied him to Andersonville, died a few days after they were paroled, and the Twenty-fourth New York Battery was nearly annihilated in the prison.

As a large mass of the testimony to be given on this trial is of a most revolting and indecent character, it is believed that the Commission will issue an order excluding ladies from the court room.

Different Degrees in Rebellion.—A correspondent of a western journal writing from Nashville, Tenn., thus defines the different degrees of rebellion:

The Southern people may be divided (I am speaking of the rebels) into classes about as follows:

First—The mass of those who were soldiers, or related to the Confederacy in subordinate capacities. These are tired, weary, worn out. I have talked with hundreds in Tennessee and North Alabama. Through the minds of many a faint glimmering of truth begins to dawn. Some of them perceive that, rightly used, their defeat as rebels is their emancipation as men. They are, as a class, very ignorant. Many of them cannot read or write. They are full of the bitterest prejudices. They hate the "nigguh," and still believe in slavery, with so unreasonable a blindness that one grows sick with apprehension when it is remembered that from this class must largely come the voters upon whom the nation will have to depend hereafter. But there is hope from them if we act rightly. They are cowed, beaten and defeated. They want peace. They will, because they must, submit to whatever the country imposes as a necessary condition of reconstruction. If we remit to the States South, vexed questions of suffrage, etc., to be a bone of contention therein, this now subdued mass, who, by proper management, can be educated into loyalty, will again be led around by the wild demagogues that have played upon their prejudices.

Second, There is another class heartily sick of the war, willing to accept results and wanting peace as a means of recuperating their fortunes. They are not converted—they are not loyal; there are none such among those who but a short time since were in arms against us, but they want to trade, to cultivate their lands and practice their professions. This would be the least troublesome of all. As it is they are likely to be most dangerous. They take the oath without compunction. They recover their property. They will vote and hold office ere long. They are the class who will assimilate with the Sharkeys, the Perrys and Holdens. Out of them that element of quasi Unionism expects its main support. They fraternize with the Northern Copperheads. They have done playing with war. That game they will not try again. As a rule few of these were large slaveholders. But they want the negro driven away. They will fight against universal suffrage bitterly, and will belong to whatever party that can gain them the maximum of power in the Union with the minimum of loyalty thereto. The poor whites, the rank and file of the late rebel army, are less dangerous than this more smooth and pretentious class.

Third—The next are the bitter, uncompromising rebels. These are nearly all the people of wealth and culture. How they do hate us! All who are allowed to are taking the oath. Why? To obtain their property. Their plantations have been used for refugee and contraband camps. Negroes have been tilling their lands. Their fine mansions have afforded pleasant quarters for our officers. They hunger for the flesh-pots. Formerly their lives were cast in pleasant places. It is natural that they should seek to get back again. But of this class, save of the political leaders of the South, the officers of the revolution, the divines who thunder above their heads God's wrath against the invaders and sang in dulcet tones of His aid in their holy struggle, and just within its pale, or hanging about the outer vestibule, were the editors, whose spirit of defiance, whose lying statements kept up the Southern courage so long. This class proudly hold up their heads. Their heroes are the Confederate soldier. The Confederate gray is their beloved hue. These people say, more or less openly, that they are not beaten, only temporarily defeated.

There is yet a still smaller class of rebels, who accept results and work in good faith. They are generally found among the radicals—the men who believe in the doctrine of State Sovereignty—who were long willing to have sacrificed slavery for independence. This class has been moulded by slavery into an intense individuality. They were Calhounites from the foundation up.

The Virginia Campaign.—Gen. Lee has published his account of the campaign of the Chickahominy. It does not differ much from the reports already given to the public, except, like all Generals, he claims victories in every fight, and softens down Malvern Hill accordingly. He represents his force in Richmond at 60,000 men; Jackson's force, operating around it, was 40,000. The whole rebel force was therefore 100,000 men instead of 200,000, as General McClellan estimated it. The two forces there were nearly equal, but McClellan, having his divided, enabled Lee to attack one of the divisions with nearly his entire force and crush it. McClellan could have done the same thing for Lee's right wing that Lee did for his, but deceived by his false estimate of Lee's numbers, he kept his forces divided till he lost the opportunity of recovery, and saved his army only by retreating. That retreat showed the noble element which comprised that army, and which subsequently, under Grant, broke the power of Lee by what the world pronounced "butchery," but which subsequent events proved to be the best policy to utterly destroy the rebel armies and bring the war to a close.

Picking Apples and Pears. The Rural World gives the following advice as to when apples and pears should be picked:

Most people let apples and pears become too ripe before they gather them. They want to see them fully ripe—ready to fall off the tree before they pick them. This is wrong. If picked a few days before maturity, they will keep longer, color more highly and command a higher price in the market. The precise time to pick is rather difficult to determine. The best criterion is, to raise the fruit up and bend the stem over, and if the stem parts from the shoot without breaking, the fruit is ready to pick, whether apples or pears. Pears should be picked proportionally earlier than apples. The quality of the fruit is also improved by early gathering. After being picked it should be put in tight boxes or barrels, and kept a few days in the dark, if of Summer or Fall varieties. Here they undergo a sweating process, and when the barrel is opened the fruit will be found of the brightest crimson and richest golden colors. Half of the secret of success in orcharding is in knowing how and when to pick fruit and how to get it to market so as to command the highest price and readiest sale. Every one's experience must govern him, and the more he studies this part of the more expert he will become. We are anxious all our readers should think while they work; that the mind should be exercised, as well as the muscle, in all farm operations and particularly should this be the case in fruit growing, where skill of the highest order will always be suitably rewarded.

A gentleman who has traveled through Iowa lately, says there are at least 20,000 returned soldiers at work in that State helping to save the harvest. He saw hardly an idle soldier in the State.
